NEW COURSE FOR TOWN SCHOOL

School Board Decides Finally to Establish Course in Domestic Science. Special Instructor Chosen. Teachers are Re-Elected.

The establishment of a department of domestic science in the Gettysburg High School was determined upon Thursday evening at the regular June meeting of the School Board, all the members voting in favor of the innovation.

Miss Helen C. Day, of Baltimore, was elected as teacher for the department at a salary of $65 a month. She will enter upon her duties with the opening of the school term in the fall. Miss Day has been teaching for some years in the schools of Baltimore county, Maryland, where her work was observed several weeks ago by a committee of Gettysburg women who went to Reisterstown for that special purpose, and who were delighted with the conduct of her department.

Miss Day is a graduate of the Carnegie Institute of Technology at Pittsburgh and is equipped to teach cooking, sewing, dress making, millinery and other allied subjects. This summer she will take a special course at Columbia University. She is expected here in a week or two to consult with the local board relative to the purchase of the necessary equipment for her department.

Miss Frances Fritchey, a member of the High School faculty, and Miss Mary B. Curry, teacher of the Colored School, did not apply for re-election. Miss Fritchey's place is still vacant and Miss Mary C. Braxton, of Harrisburg, was elected to fill the position made vacant by Miss Curry. Miss Braxton was the choice of the more prominent colored residents of Gettysburg. She will serve at a salary of $40 a month for the first year. If she proves satisfactory the salary will be increased. Miss Curry was receiving $50 last year. The instructorship in manual training was also left vacant for the present but will be filled, it is expected, in a week or two.

All the other teachers were re-elected at the former salaries with the exception of Miss Elizabeth Rummel who received an increase from $55 to $57.50 per month.

The janitors were also re-elected: J. A. Kepner at the Meade building, Charles Little at the High School building, R. M. Elliott at the High Street building, and Walter Carter at the Colored School. Mr. Kepner's pay is increased from $30 to $40 a month; Mr. Little's from $30 to $35, and Mr. Elliott's from $30 to $32.50. Walter Carter will continue to receive $5 a month.

The tax rate for this year will be the same as last, 7 1/2 mills general and 1 mill special. Prof. Burgoon reported that the amount due for tuition this year from surrounding townships for pupils sent here, and for individual non-residents, reached a total of $1102.25. Four years ago the revenue from this source was less than $300. The increase is proving quite a factor in meeting the expenses of the schools though the large number of children from nearby districts is tending to congest conditions in some of the rooms.

With the opening of the schools in the fall there will be a decided innovation at the Meade building. The three rooms on the second floor taught by Miss Rummel, Miss Miller and Miss Benner are to be conducted after the department plan—that is, in the same manner as the High School is now managed. The large room is to be equipped with single desks and will be used as an assembly room where the pupils of all three schools will gather. The other rooms will be used as class rooms in charge of the teachers. It is expected that the change will prove a great improvement over the present system where the three teachers have pupils of two grades in each of their schools.

A proposition of members of the Parent Teachers' Association to establish a course in music in the town schools has been accepted—the association to pay one-half of the teacher's salary and the school board the balance. No instructor has been chosen.

The request of Prof. Sanders to allow the use of the High School building next week for the Gettysburg Summer School was granted. The college buildings will be in use then and some place had to be secured for the opening week of the session.

THROUGH HERE ON LONG TRIP

National Highway Association Sends Representative out on 50,000 Mile Trip from Coast to Coast and elsewhere.

Starting on the second lap of a 50,000 mile automobile tour of road inspection, A. L. Westguard, vice president of the National Highway Association, left Washington Thursday for Gettysburg and Pittsburgh. He arrived here this afternoon.

Accompanied by Mrs. Westguard, he left New York Wednesday night and before returning to that city purposes to inspect the through highways of the country, both North and South, as far as the Pacific coast.

The tour is being taken for the gathering of first hand information for the highway organization. The northern route will be followed on the westward trip, with side excursions to the Canadian border.

Returning Mr. Westguard will follow the southern course, inspecting the roads of the southern tier of states.

THE SUMMER SCHOOL

Prepare for Opening of the Summer School. Many Branches Taught.

The Gettysburg Summer School will begin on Monday morning, June 9. Owing to the activities of the college commencement the use of the High School building during the first week was secured. The opening exercises and enrollment will take place in that building at 10 o'clock.

The branches covered include high school, college preparatory and teacher's normal subjects. The courses in art and music are adapted to a much broader range. Any one with a taste for work in these lines can take either or both of these courses. The work in art will be in charge of Miss Jane F. Shields, whose course last year was very successful. Special attention is called to the music course. Miss Krumme, who will have charge, is among the best musical directors in the state. The school will be closed during the week of the celebration.

A large number of enrollments have been received for this class but more are desired. The counter interest to the excitement of the strenuous summer which the school offers will be of great value. The privilege of being under the tutelage of a master teacher in music is a rare opportunity in Gettysburg and one deserving the attention of all lovers of music. The class will give a concert at the Chautauqua.

PREPARING FOR ANNIVERSARY

Meadeboro, City of Tents, to have Space for Two Thousand Including City Newspaper Representatives. Other Notes.

The land rented from Judge Swope immediately north of the National Cemetery is to have several hundred tents and will be known as "Meadeboro." A Philadelphia company is leasing tents there. One street is to be known as "Newspaper Row" where the score or more city correspondents will have accommodations. Special telegraph wires will be provided there. The company having charge of the project charges $1.50 per night for a cot, pillow, mattress and blanket. They claim to have room for 2,000.

Fire Marshall Baldwin, of Pennsylvania, was here on Thursday going over the situation with Burgess Holtzworth regarding the protection of the town from serious fires during the anniversary celebration. Mr. Baldwin was accompanied by Mr. Wolf, who is engaged by the state in the same line. They will return next Tuesday for a conference with the town council.

The hospital camp is being rapidly made ready. A sewerage system is being put in, and the pipe line for the water system has been laid. There are at present twenty three tents up. Some trouble was encountered in digging the ditch for the sewerage line, and they had to blast to make a way through some large rocks.

One of the patrols of the Chambersburg boy scouts—30 members—will camp along the Gettysburg pike—at the first hill and curve west of Cashtown—during the Gettysburg celebration in July and will warn motor vehicles and others of the condition of the highway there. It will have first aid remedies for use, if necessary.

PROBERS FIND NEW KIND OF LOBBY

Overman Says Its Object is to Mould Public Sentiment.

SUMMON FORMER SENATOR

Friends of President Wilson Are Sure
Some Interesting Information Will Be Obtained.

Washington, June 6.—The senate's lobby investigation has already disclosed the activity of powerful lobbying interests of a "new character," according to Senator Overman, of the investigating committee.
"We have developed thoroughly the fact that there is powerful and concerted lobbying," he said. "It is not the personal appeal to senators, but the newer form of organized activity to mould public sentiment and to influence senators by means of public pressure from various sources."

"It is insidious to the extent that this publicity and organized campaign often partakes of misrepresentation and misinformation."

Mr. Overman added that he had some "decided views on the question" as to what he would recommend for the committee's report to the senate.

To the list of outside witnesses who will be required to tell Saturday and next week of their activities in urging or opposing legislation, were added the names of C. J. Faulkner, former United States senator from West Virginia; Colin Livingstone, officer of a Washington bank; W. J. Strassburger, of Glassboro, Pa., president of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company; Paul J. Christian, an employee of the Louisiana Sugar Growers' offices in Washington; and Arthur B. Hayes, of Washington.

Subpoenas have been served on the following witnesses:

George E. Gilliland, of Washington; Charles Hamilton, Washington; former Congressman Charles B. Landis, of Indiana; Robert Crain, Baltimore; Truman G. Palmer, Washington, a leading figure in the fight of the beet sugar interests against free raw sugar; and Frank C. Lowry, of New York, who conducted a free sugar fight for the "committee of wholesale grocers," and is said to be an employee of the Federal Sugar Refining company.

Although Senator Overman, the chairman, would not admit that the committee was receiving aid from the White House, the opinion prevailed about the capitol that the names of some of the men summoned as witnesses have been suggested by President Wilson. Friends of the president are sure that some interesting information will be obtained from those summoned.

Senator Smith told the probers that he was not financially interested in anything "substantially" affected by the tariff bill, but said he owned some farm lands and city real estate.

Senator Goff said that his West Virginia coal property brought him about $25,000 and his oil properties about $50,000 a year. No one had approached him on the tariff and he knew of no lobby influences in Washington.

Senator Gore had no interest affected. Several delegations and individuals had called on him, including F. R. Hathaway and Henry T. Oxnard in regard to sugar.

Senator Sherman said his interest in the tariff was limited to farm products and only because he made farm loans. "I have seen none of the sugar lobby," he said, "but I have received a great deal of their literature and have preserved every scrap of it."

Senator Overman at once asked him to furnish the literature to the committee.

"The only improper influences ever brought to bear on me were by representatives of labor unions," Mr. Sherman added. "They threatened to exterminate me."

Senator Shields said he raised live stock, sheep, grain and Angora goats, all affected by the tariff. He had not sought to influence any one and no lobbying methods had been used to affect his action on the tariff bill.

JAMES C. M'REYNOLDS.

Attorney General Threatens
Standard Oil Company.

M'REYNOLDS AFTER THE OIL TRUST

Attorney General May Institute
New Suit.

Washington, June 6.—Attorney General McReynolds said that he regarded the Standard Oil dissolution decree as inadequate to meet the intent of the Sherman law.

This was the first definite indication of the attorney general's attitude toward an investigation conducted to determine whether an "oil trust" still existed.

The attorney general's objections to the decree, like those he has expressed against the tobacco trust decree, are based on the ground that a real dissolution of trusts cannot be accomplished by a distribution of the stock pro rata among the same shareholders.

From Charles B. Morrison and Oliver E. Fagan, his special assistants, the attorney general has heard the results of their investigation of the oil situation and is deliberating whether the department of justice will be justified in taking further action under the Sherman law.

Should he reach the conclusion that a trust still exists, it is pointed out that three plans of action are open to the attorney general. A civil suit for the dissolution of any new combination; indictment of individuals for contempt of court proceedings; if action is taken it is believed it will be of a prosecution under the criminal law.

Legislation to carry out Attorney General McReynolds' plan to levy an additional excise tax on the production of the larger tobacco factories to prevent control of the field by the factors of the former tobacco trust, was introduced by Senator Hitchcock as an amendment to the tariff bill.

It would levy a heavy tax on manufacturers producing more than 80,000,000 pounds of tobacco, or 4,000,000 pounds of snuff annually. Hitchcock estimated that the tax would affect only three tobacco companies, two or three cigarette companies and two cigar companies.

It would be effective as soon as a manufacturer controlled approximately 25 per cent of the total production, and probably bring the government $15,000,000 a year.

UNDERWEAR FOR WOMEN

Slit Skirt Must Not Reveal Too Much in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 6.—Women in Indianapolis who wear the new style slit skirt, also must wear undergarments, and the traffic squad of the police force had been given out to enforce the order, which was given out by Superintendent of Police Martin J. Hyland.

The order was issued after Superintendent Hyland had received a letter signed "The Ladies," and which read as follows:

"As we know you are the highest authority in the city, we, as the ladies, ask that you prohibit the wearing of slit skirts without undergarments. We hope that you will take this seriously."

Superintendent Hyland said he felt that the matter deserved attention and asked the traffic squad to act as censor of feminine wearing apparel.

CHINDA SEES THE PRESIDENT

Japanese Ambassador and Wilson Discuss Land Snarl.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE FRIENDLY

It is Stated at the White House That No Basis of Settlement Has Been Brought Out.

Washington, June 6.—Japan carried her grievance in the California land issue directly to the White House. Ambassador Chinda was granted an audience with the president and discussed the situation with him for nearly an hour.

The president had read the Japanese rejoinder to the reply of the United States to her first protest against the California legislation and so was entirely familiar with the latest presentation of the Japanese case. Preceding the ambassador's arrival the president also had a half hour talk with Secretary of State Bryan, during which the contents of the Japanese note were discussed.

Though not at all unprecedented the ambassador's call at the White House to discuss the issue with President Wilson directly was regarded as another manifestation of the desire of the Japanese government to press the issue to a conclusion at a nearly date. It is understood that Ambassador Chinda requested an interview with the president when he presented the note of his government to Secretary Bryan.

Despite the pressure of the Japanese for an early adjustment of the situation, it was indicated at the White House that the negotiations are far from nearing a conclusion. In fact, it was positively stated at the White House that no basis of settlement of the issue has yet been brought out in either of the three notes that have constituted the diplomatic exchange thus far. This fact is taken to indicate that there is a most protracted and tedious discussion to come.

What settlement there can be has been made even more difficult to surmise by the positive announcement that the administration is not contemplating bringing proceedings against the California law in the courts. Inasmuch as the Japanese demand is for the nullification of the California statute, which it insists must be brought about by the federal government, the position of President Wilson and his advisers is rendered even more difficult.

Unless the Tokyo government recedes from or modifies its stand against the California law, nothing but its absolute elimination will enable Japan to withdraw with honor from the discussion.

Statements made at the White House lead to the surmise in some quarters that Japan has made some novel proposal which affords basis for the characterization of the forthcoming negotiations as "interesting."

The Japanese note will come up for discussion at the cabinet meeting and it is expected that some progress will be made toward outlining the nature of the reply to the communication.

A Day at a Time.

Only a day at a time. There may never be a tomorrow.
Only a day at a time and that we can live. We know
The trouble we cannot bear is only the trouble we borrow.
And the trials that never come are the ones that fret us so.
Only a step at a time. It may be the angels bend over us.
To bear us above the stones that wound our feet by the way.
The step that is hardest of all is not the one just before us.
And the path we tread the most may be smoothed another day.

When the Trellis Fell.

Once upon a time, the Chinese story runs, a Chinese magistrate's subordinate had come home very late and had had an unpleasant encounter with his wife. To his superior he explained next day that he was working in his garden when the trellis fell over and scratched him.
The magistrate, however, saw through the fraud and exclaimed: "Why deceive me, wretched man? I know the origin of your sufferings. It is your evil wife who has indicted these scars upon you. O shameless and incorrigible race of women, how many are the sins that must be laid at your doors! Like vampires you come!"

Here the magistrate looked up and saw his own wife approaching with a scowl on her face and a broomstick in her hand. "Go, my good man," he said suddenly. "Hurry. My trellis is about to fall too!"—From "Why the World Laughs."

CONFESSES MURDER IN CIVIL SUIT

Molder Admits in Court He Killed Detective.

Columbus, O., June 6.—Lee Cage, a member of the Iron Molders' union of Wheeling, W. Va., confessed in the United States district court here that he killed John J. Reardon, a detective, of Pittsburgh, at Steubenville, O., in 1910. The killing occurred during a period of labor trouble.

Cage was tried at Steubenville more than a year ago for the murder and was acquitted. Having been in jeopardy once, another trial on the same charge is barred.

Cage's confession was made in connection with a civil suit and resulted in dismissal of proceedings involving the disposition of $5000 reward money and another suit by Reardon's administrator to collect $5000 damages from Jefferson county because of Reardon's death.

Following Cage's admission, an agreed order was entered allowing the dead man's heirs $1500.

Cage declared that he had come into court voluntarily. "So you were not satisfied with having killed Detective Reardon, but now come into court and confess to that crime so that you may help to defraud the little daughter of your victim out of what rightfully belongs to her?" queried Attorney Lewis. "Oh, I don't know as I am," retorted Cage.

Judge Sater, apparently stunned by Cage's unexpected admission that he killed Reardon, said:

"You really mean to tell this court that you assassinated that man," referring to Reardon.

"They buried him, didn't they?" was Cage's answer.

After settlement of the case Cage left the court room hurriedly and is said to have started for Wheeling.

Miller then tried to draw with his left hand, but again Mr. Whitten's accurate shooting was effective, disabling his foot's remaining hand.

Although every effort was made to keep the matter quiet, the tale became public when a warrant charging misdemeanor was sworn out against Miller and Mrs. Whitten. Both were taken into custody and will be given a hearing next Monday.

HATPINS AND U. S. FLAGS IN RIOTS

Hazleton Girls Still Wielding "Woman's Weapon."

Hazleton, Pa., June 6.—Girls employed at the shirtwaist factory of J. Gerhardt & Co. continued the use of hatpins when approached by pickets of the United Mine Workers and other unions to remain away from the company's plant.

In a clash at West Hazleton a number of pickets, among them some of the girl strikers, were scratched with pins in fights to take these weapons from the operatives.

Miss Susie Fetter, a worker, was arrested on the charge of threatening to use a pin on Frank Stoll, a policeman. Her sister, Helen, it is charged, was almost stripped to the waist in a fight.

It is charged that pickets tried to prevent girls from getting on trolley cars. The strikers and pickets allege that epithets were hurled at them by the workers.

The strikers carried American flags and had prepared to plant them in front of trolley cars to stop the latter in case workers were on board. The strikers declared that the motormen would not run down the Stars and Stripes. Among the pickets are trolley employees who are affiliated with the Central Labor union, which has charge of the strike.

Prudence and Mercy

A Revolutionary Story For Independence Day

By F. A. MITCHEL.

Near the City of Brotherly Love, commonly called Philadelphia, there lived during the Revolutionary war a Quaker merchant named Jonathan Sutphen. Mr. Sutphen was a patriot and would gladly have fought the British who were trying to reduce the Americans to obedience had he not belonged to the sect of noncombatants. He so far went back on his principles as to refrain from forbidding his son to enlist in the American army, but his conscience would not permit him to bear arms himself.

When General Howe and his red-coats held possession of Philadelphia on stated days he would send detachments out into the country to protect the farmers who desired to bring their produce into the city for market. Jonathan Sutphen was too patriotic to sell anything to a redcoat, and since it was the practice of the British commanders to avoid doing anything to irritate the people against the king's authority they gave orders that no one need sell unless he chose to do so.

Sutphen, on being asked to sell his butter and eggs, would say: "Friend, I do not desire to sell thee my products. If thee take them with out my consent thee have only to do so."

Now, these words might be interpreted to mean, "I, being a Quaker, cannot oppose you in combat; therefore you have only to take what you want," or there might be a reply such as has been made to men demanding the surrender of a fort, "If you want it come and take it." The soldiers could not tell which of these two interpretations to put upon the old man's word and had some curiosity in the matter.

Jonathan, having winked at his son entering the rebel army, was left with his two daughters. They had been brought up Quakeresses, but the non-combatant principle was not as solid in them as it was in their father. One day when a British sergeant and several privates asked the old man if he didn't wish to sell his butter and eggs he received the reply: "Those products of the cow and the hen are the property of my daughters. The sergeant, when applied to Prudence, one of the daughters, who said, "No redcoat is welcome to our property even by paying for it."

"But suppose we take it. Surely you, a Quakeress, would not resist us?" "Surely thee as a soldier would not take from a woman what she would deny thee."

"We would take from any rebel against the authority of the sovereign what we need to sustain us in the king's service."

With that he went to the henhouse near by and began to look for eggs. Having gathered what he found there he was passing the kitchen door when he received a douche of scalding water all over him.

He was too badly burned to think of anything except the pain he suffered but the men who were with him, seeing what had been done, vowed they would duck the girl in a pond on the premises, giving her a cold bath to pay her for the hot water she had given the sergeant. Rushing to the kitchen they were endeavoring to drag her out when there appeared in the door way the towering form of the old Quaker, her father.

"Thou miscreants!" he said, raising a huge walking staff he held in his hand. "Thou minions of a tyrannical king! I will smite thee hip and thigh!" Down came the staff on the back of one of the men. Then it was raised and fell again on the head of another. They had left their muskets outside intending to use both hands in dragging the girl to the pond, and were consequently without weapons. Prudence's sister, Mercy, seized a rolling pin and brought it down on the skull of one of the soldiers, who had stooped to avoid a blow from her father. The man, stunned, lay on the floor. Then the old man finished the other soldier with a blow of his staff on the stomach and Prudence, seizing a clothesline coiled on a nail driven into the wall, assisted her father and her sister to bind the intruders.

"You old villain!" roared one of the redcoats. "I thought you were a Quaker and wouldn't fight."

"I have sinned in resisting thy importunities," replied the old man, "but I have been sorely tempted. I would have turned my other cheek to thee, but I could not see thee constitute thyself a judge in the case of my daughter nor permit thee to smite her."

The door was darkened, and a British officer stood looking at his men bound and guarded by an old man and two girls. He asked what it meant and was told. He directed them to unbind the men, promising that they should not be further annoyed.

"I am obliged to report this case to headquarters," he said. "Please give me your names."

"My name is Jonathan Sutphen," said the old man meekly.

"And yours?" to one of the girls. "Prudence." The officer could not repress a smile.

"And yours?" he said to the other sister. "Mercy."

He burst into a laugh. "Well, Mistress Prudence and Miss Mercy, all I have to say to you is that you baffle your names."

After the war the officer married Prudence, admitting that it was the most imprudent act of his life.

Embarrassing.

A very pretty but extremely slender girl entered a street car and managed to seat herself in a narrow space between two men. Presently a portly colored mammy entered the car, and the pretty miss, thinking to humiliate the men for their lack of gallantry, arose.

"Auntie," she said, with a wave of her hand toward the place she had just vacated, "take my seat."

"Thank you, missy," replied the colored woman, smiling broadly, "but which gen'man's lap was you sittin' on?"—Magazine of Fun.

Little chicks are likely to have trouble if they are not given an opportunity to stretch their legs by the time they are three weeks old. And such trouble is aggravated if the ration is too largely fat rather than bone and muscle forming.

At just the right time, when the weeds are starting in the surface soil, an iron rake is the best weed killer for the small garden that we know of, as it not only covers a good deal of ground, but stirs it well and exposes the tender roots of the weeds to the sun.

A leading eastern agricultural journal recently contained an illustrated article telling how one man failed in the poultry business. While they won't say much about it, there are doubtless a good many of its readers who will be in shape to sympathize with this unfortunate.

A firm in Massachusetts makes a business of collecting stray milk bottles. Last year it collected from various sources 2,500,000 bottles, and of this number 500,000 were taken from city dumps. If this practice is general in American cities it is no wonder that the cost of living is a trifle high.

BORDEAUX MIXTURE.

A lady reader makes inquiry as to the method of making the bordeaux solution, which she wishes to use on apple and pear trees. This solution is a fungicide and is for the purpose of controlling apple scab, sooty blotch and other pests of a fungous nature. The solution is easily made, its preparation being as follows: To make fifty gallons dissolve five pounds of blue vitriol (copper sulphate) in twenty-five gallons of water in a small barrel or half barrel. Next slake five pounds of fresh stone lime, using care not to let it get too hot. This is done by having plenty of water handy and stirring it as occasion requires. When thoroughly slaked and reduced to the consistency of a fine putty dilute to twenty-five gallons, as in the case of the blue vitriol. The two ingredients should then be poured together into a fifty gallon barrel, a pailful of each being added alternately and the mixture stirred after each addition. When ready to use the mixture should contain an excess of lime. To be sure that such is the case a few drops of a solution of prussiate of potash (poison) should be added to a small quantity of the mixture, which, if still acid, will give a chocolate precipitate. If this precipitate is formed line water should be added until it doesn't. The apple worm may be held in check by adding to this solution two pounds of commercial arsenate of lead, which should be diluted in a couple of quarts of water and carefully stirred before pouring it in. The mixture should be stirred frequently while spraying and should be applied to the trees under as heavy a pressure as possible. The solution described is also excellent for controlling potato blight. The first application should be made when the vines are ten inches high and should be repeated at intervals of ten days if wet or muggy weather prevails. If the potato bugs show up the arsenate will fix them, though it is not necessary to add it unless one wishes to get rid of them.

A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION

The Cole commission man's bill, which passed both houses of the New York legislature and was signed by Governor Sulzer, is not all that the producers of the Empire State had hoped, but it gives promise of doing a good deal to put a stop to the injustice which they have had to put up with for years past from crooked commission men. The new law gives the commissioner of agriculture authority to refuse a license to any produce man who is convicted of not doing business on the level; requires of each merchant a fidelity bond of $3,000, any part of which can be levied on by the farmer for money not honestly accounted for to him in payment for produce received by the merchant; provides for hearing before the agricultural commissioner at which grievances may be presented by growers and penalties assessed against fidelity bonds, and empowers the commissioner to take sworn testimony and examine records relating to transactions in dispute. It would look very much as if all that New York producers would have to do to get a fair measure of redress under this new law would be to make a good loud "holier" and put their evidence before the proper authorities.

Senator G. M. Hitchcock, Who Wants Currency Probed.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, who because he is a newspaper man as well as a statesman wants to know things, would use the probe on our currency system. He recently laid before the senate committee on banking and currency, of which he is a member, thirty questions designed to bring out views on where and how the currency system is at fault and what remedies are needed. These questions are to be sent to bankers and financial experts throughout the country.

It has been said of Senator Hitchcock that he is a born inquisitor, who has poked his pointed inquiries pretty successfully into many appropriation bills, more administrative performances and quite a few sleep laden laws. He was born in Omaha fifty-four years ago and educated in the public schools supplemented by two years' study in Germany and a law course in Michigan university. For a few years he practiced law; then in 1885 he established the Omaha World, which has since become the World-Herald and which he still publishes. He has served three terms in the lower house of congress and was once defeated. In the state wide primaries of 1910 he defeated Senator E. J. Burkett, Republican, and was elected by the legislature the following January. He is a lifelong Democrat and friend of William J. Bryan.

The Japanese Ambassador.
Japan's protest against California's alien landholding law has directed attention to Viscount Chinda. Japanese ambassador to the United States. Born in China, as he is commonly addressed, has represented the mikado at Washington since March, 1912, and is perhaps the most advanced in American affairs and customs of any Japanese.

VISCOUNT SUTEMI CHINDA.

One who had previously come here in the same capacity. He was educated at De Pauw university, Indiana, where he was the classmate of former Senator Beveridge. Baron Chinda belongs to that group of statesmen and soldiers who were sent by the government to the United States to be educated. After his return to Japan he was married and later was appointed consul general at San Francisco. There he and his wife lived several years. His rise in the foreign service was rapid. He was sent to Brazil as minister and later promoted to St. Petersburg. In 1901 he was made vice minister of foreign affairs and aided Count Kamura in directing Japan's affairs in the war with Russia. He was appointed ambassador to Berlin in 1908, remaining at that post until named to succeed Baron Uchida as the ambassador at Washington. The ambassador is about fifty-two years of age.

Had it on Bismarck.
"In King Edward in His True Colors" is a delightful story of Sir W. H. Russell's interview with Prince Bismarck when the latter was angry with the famous correspondent for reporting in the London Times some things which had been said to him by "Unser Fritz," then crown prince of Prussia. Bismarck lost his temper and said: "I suppose you couldn't resist showing your importance by reporting all that that dangerous confidant to you." Russell replied: "Your excellency knows that I always respect confidence. There is much that you have said to me yourself that I have not reported." "Puff!" said Bismarck. "Anything I say to you you may bow from the top of St. Paul's." Russell—I thank your excellency. I shall use that permission to record your opinion of the crown prince.
